About Me

I'm a third-year student studying Computer Information Systems with a focus on Business Administration. Although being a pilot is my career goal, my interest in photography explores the beauty in everyday moments, from sweeping landscapes to framed urban scenes.

What truly kickstarted it all was that as a kid, my uncle gave me a DSLR and ever since then it sparked a curiosity of what could be captured behind a lens.

When I'm not behind the camera, you can find me working at the airport fueling planes, exploring blue skies, or learning about new techniques in lightroom.
